

From: Brian Kretschmar <bkimages@comcast.net>
To: <mlivingston@utah.gov>, <jorchard@utah.gov>
Date: 10/8/2008 1:08 PM
Subject: net meeting public comment

I am not very educated on the entire scope of net meeting but I do think that there should not be any cap on the amount of solar power that residents can produce or the number of homes that can produce electricity. If the RMP won't make more of an effort to use solar and other renewables then why should there customers be penalized. We should reward any customer that is willing to make the sacrifice and invest in PV to reduce the demand for coal produced electricity. Those customers should also be paid fairly for what any extra electricity that is sold back to the RMP.

Brian Kretschmar